The writing area is divided into two main sections. The top section is a smaller, rounded rectangle with a decorative, scalloped top edge. It contains two sets of handwriting lines, each with a solid top line, a dashed middle line, and a solid bottom line. The bottom section is a larger, rounded rectangle with a decorative, scalloped top edge that matches the one above. It contains eight sets of handwriting lines, each with a solid top line, a dashed middle line, and a solid bottom line.

The image shows a vertical writing template. It consists of two columns of rounded rectangular boxes. Each box is divided into three horizontal sections by lines: a solid top line, a dashed middle line, and a solid bottom line. This layout is typical for teaching handwriting to children, where the dashed line helps guide the height of letters. There are five such boxes in each column, for a total of ten writing areas.
